OVER THE BARS.

'Twas milking time, and the cows came up
From the meadows sweet with clover,
And stood in the lane, while pretty Jane
Had a quiet chat with the drover—
Such a quiet chat that it scarcely seemed
That a single word was spoken;
While a magic spell with the night dews fell,
And the rhymth of song was unbroken.

The cattle stood at the lovers' side,
Without any show of vexation,
As though impressed that a five-bar rest
Was a part of their rest-oration.
And as Jane listened to notes that came
Right under the bars and over,
Her heart took wing, like a silly thing,
And nestled up close to the drover.

She heard him say that his home was poor,
That he had nothing but love to give her:
And she smiled content, as though Love had spent
Every arrow he had in his quiver;
She smiled content, while the evening air
With voices of birds was ringing,
And her lips confessed that a lowly nest
Should never prevent her singing.

So over the bars the lovers lean,
In the joy of their sweet communion,
And their looks declare that poverty ne'er
Shall be a bar to their union
O, sweetest music, go thread your rhymes
Now under the bars and over!
Where pretty Jane, in the fragrant lane,
Bewitched the heart of the drover.

THE STORY OF THE GOOD LITTLE BOY WHO DID NOT PROSPER.

BY MARK TWAIN.

Once there was a good little boy by the name of Jacob Blivens. He always obeyed his parents, no matter how absurd and unreasonable their demands were; and he always learned his book, and never was late at Sabbath school. He would not play hookey, even when his sober judgment told him it was the most profitable thing he could do. None of the other boys could ever make that boy out, he acted so strangely. He wouldn't lie, no matter how convenient it was. He just said it was wrong to lie, and that was sufficient for him. And he was so honest that he was simply ridiculous—The curious ways that Jacob had surpassed everything. He wouldn't play marbles on Sunday, he wouldn't rob birds' nests, he wouldn't give hot pennies to organ grinders' monkeys; he didn't seem to take any interest in any kind of rational amusement. So the other boys used to try to reason it out and come to an understanding of him, but they couldn't arrive at any satisfactory conclusion; as I said before, they could only figure out a sort of vague idea that he was "afflicted" and so they took him under their protection, and never allowed any harm to come to him.

This good little boy read all the Sunday school books; they were his greatest delight. This was the whole secret of it. He believed in the good little boys they put in the Sunday school books; he had every confidence in them. He longed to come across one of them alive, once; but he never did. They all died before his time, may be. Whenever he read about a particularly good one, he turned over quickly to the end to see what became of him, because he wanted to travel thousands of miles and gaze on him; but it wasn't any use; that good little boy always died in the last chapter, and there was a picture of the funeral, with all his relations and the Sunday school children standing around the grave in pantaloons that were too short, and bonnets that were too large, and everybody crying into handkerchiefs that had as much as a yard and a half of stuff in them. He was always headed off in this way. He never could see one of those good little boys, on account of his always dying in the last chapter.

Jacob had a noble ambition to be put in a Sunday school book. He wanted to be put in, with pictures representing him gloriously declining to lie to his mother, and she weeping for joy about it; and pictures representing him standing on the door step giving a penny to a poor beggar woman with six children, and telling her to spend it freely, but not to be extravagant, because extravagance is a sin, and pictures of him magnanimously refusing to tell on the bad boy who always lay in wait for him around the corner, as he came from school, and welted him over the head with a lath, and chaed him home, saying, "Hi! hi!" as he proceeded. That was the ambition of young Jacob Blivens. He wished to be put in a Sunday school book. It made him feel a little uncomfortable sometimes when he reflected that the good little boys always died. He loved to live, you know, and this was the most unpleasant feature about being a Sunday school book boy. He knew it was not healthy to be good. He knew it was more fatal than consumption to be so supernaturally good as the boys in the books were; he knew that none of them had ever been able to stand it long, and it pained him to think that if they put him in a book he wouldn't ever see it or even if they did get the book out before he died it wouldn't be popular without any picture of his funeral in the back part of it. It couldn't be much of a Sunday school book that couldn't tell about the advice he gave to the community when he was dying. So, at last, of course, he had to make up his mind to do the best he could under the circumstances—to live right, and hang on as long as he could, and have his dying speech all ready when his time came.

But, somehow nothing ever went right with this good little boy; nothing ever turned out with him the way it turned out with the good little boys in the books.—They always had a good time, and the bad boys had the broken legs; but in this case there was a screw loose somewhere, and it all happened just the other way. When he found Jim Blake stealing apples, and went under the tree to read to him about the bad little boy who fell out of a neighbor's apple tree, and broke his arm, Jim fell out of the tree too, but he fell on him and broke his arm, and Jim wasn't hurt at all. Jacob couldn't understand that. There wasn't anything in the books like it.

And once, when some bad boys pushed a blind man over in the mud, and Jacob ran to help him up and receive his blessing, the blind man did not give him any blessing at all, but whacked him over the head with his stick and said he would like to catch him shoving him again and then pretending to help him up. This was not in accordance with any of the books. Jacob looked them all over to see.

One thing that Jacob wanted to do was to find a lame dog that hadn't any place to stay, and was hungry and persecuted, and bring him home, and pet him and have the dog's imperishable gratitude.—And at last he found one, and was happy; and he brought him home and fed him, but when he was going to pet him, the dog flew at him and tore all the clothes off him except those that were in front, and made a spectacle of him that was astonishing. He examined authorities, but he could not understand the matter. It was of the same breed of dogs that was in the books, but it acted very differently. Whatever this boy did, he got into trouble. The very things the boys in the books got rewarded for turned out to be about the most unprofitable things he could invest in.

Once when he was on his way to Sunday school he saw some bad boys starting off pleasuring in a sail boat. He was filled with consternation, because he knew from his reading that boys who went sailing on Sunday invariably got drowned. So he ran out on a raft to warn them, but a log turned with him and slid him into the river. A man got him out pretty soon, and the doctor pumped the water out of him and gave him a fresh start with his bellows, but he caught cold and lay sick abed nine weeks. But the most unaccountable thing about it was that the bad boys in the boat had a good time all day, and then reached home alive and well, in the most surprising manner.—Jacob Blivens said there was nothing like these things in the books. He was perfectly dumbfounded.

When he got well he was a little discouraged, but he resolved to keep on trying, anyhow. He knew that so far his experiences would not do to go in a book, but he hadn't yet reached the allotted term of life for good little boys, and he hoped to be able to make a record yet, if he could hold on until the time was fully up. If everything else failed, he had his dying speech to fall back on.

He examined his authorities, and now found that it was time to go to see as a cabin boy. He called on a ship captain and made his application, and when the captain asked for his recommendation he proudly drew out a tract and pointed to the words; "To Jacob Blivens, from his affectionate teacher." But the captain was a coarse, vulgar man, and he said, "Oh, that be blowed; that wasn't any proof that he knew how to wash dishes or handle a slush bucket, and he guessed he didn't want him." This was altogether the most extraordinary thing that had ever happened to Jacob in all his life. A compliment from a teacher, on a tract, had never failed to move the tenderest emotions of ship captains and open the way to all offices of honor and profit in their gift—it never had in any book that ever he had read. He could hardly believe his senses.

This boy always had a hard time of it. Nothing ever came out according to the authorities with him. At last, one day, when he was around hunting up bad little boys to admonish, he found a lot of them in an old iron foundry fixing up a little joke on fourteen or fifteen dogs, which they had tied together in long procession, and were going to ornament them with empty nitro-glycerine cans made fast to their tails. Jacob's heart was touched. He sat down on one of those cans—for he never minded grease when duty was before him—and he took hold of the foremost dog by the collar, and turned his reproving eyes upon wicked Tom. Jones. But just at that moment Alderman McWeller, full of wrath, stepped in. All the bad boys ran away; but Jacob Blivens rose in conscious innocence, and began one of those stately little Sunday school speeches, which always commence with "Oh, sir!" in dead opposition to the fact that no boy, good or bad, ever starts a remark with "Oh, sir!" But the Alderman never waited to hear the rest. He took Jacob Blivens by the ear, and turned him around, and hit him a whack in the rear with the flat of his hand; and in an instant that good little boy shot out thro' the roof and soared away toward the sun, with the fragments of those fifteen dogs stringing after him like the tail of a kite, And there wasn't a sign of that Alderman or that old iron foundry left on the face of the earth; and as for young Jacob Blivens, he never got a chance to make his last dying speech after all his trouble fixing it up, unless he made it to the birds; because, although the bulk of him came down all right in a tree-top in an adjoining county, the rest of him was apportioned around four townships, and so they had to hold five inquests on him to find out whether he was dead or not, and how it occurred. You never saw a boy scattered so.

Thus perished the little boy who did the best he could, but didn't come out according to the books. Every boy who did as he did prospered except him. His case is truly remarkable. It will probably never be accounted for.—The Galaxy.

A NIGHT WITH A BEAR.

BY AN ARTIST.

I have met with many perilous adventures in my career, but the one which perhaps dwells most forcibly on my mind, occurred to me on an occasion when I was benighted in one of the vast forests near Mount Washington and the Commonusac River. Looking about me in the dark for a place of shelter, where I could lie down, I espied close beside me what appeared to be a small log cabin. Glad of a shelter made by hands, I hastened towards it, and pushing it open, I entered, and found myself in a gloom as black as the blackest night.

Glad of a shelter for my weary head, I threw myself upon the earth, and in a little time was unconscious of all that was passing around me; the last thing I remembered being the sighing of the wind through the branches of the trees, and the rush of the swollen river. How long I slept, I know not; but I awoke with a start, and a vivid sense of danger impending over me. I did not rise to my feet, but lay motionless as though some great weight was upon me which chained me down. The wind had risen, and the branches of the trees swayed and creaked above my head, and mingled with the music of the falling water. Through the door, which I had left partially ajar, I could see a glimmer of light, and knew thereby that the moon had risen above the mountains.

Suddenly I gave a start. My heart seemed to stand still, and my hair crept with terror on my head, while I felt a chill like ice pervading my entire being. My head was lying close to the wall on one side of the cabin; and just outside the logs I heard the deep, hoarse growl of some wild animal. I lay as still as death. The sound was again repeated, this time coupled with another. The beast was digging in the ground close to my head; and from the sound of the busy claws in the earth, I knew that it had nearly worked its way beneath the bottom log of the cabin. With a shudder in which I seemed almost to feel the claws upon my skull, I sprang to my feet, and bounded to the opposite side of the cabin. A ceasing of the mining operations on the part of the brute, and a deep growl, told me that my motions were known, and that they were disliked by my unwelcome companion.

My situation was a most unwelcome one. Besieged in that narrow place by either a bear or a panther, with no weapons of defence, and the brute at any time liable to force an entrance, I hardly knew which way to turn, or what to do to ensure my safety. The brute left the place where it had been at work, and followed round, outside, to the spot where I stood, giving utterance to another of its furious growls which seemed to me ominous of the fate it meant for me. I glanced towards the door, and saw to my dismay, that it stood slightly ajar, and that there was nothing to prevent the brute from entering the moment it should discover the aperture.

Forgetting that the brute had followed without my motion inside, I sprang towards the door with the intention of closing it. I threw myself against it, but to my dismay, found that it would close no further. Either the door or logs, or both, had warped out of place, or else it had never shut tightly as it should have done. I heard the hurried tread of the brute outside, and knew that in a moment it would be at the door, and I completely at its mercy. Hurriedly I looked about for a place of refuge, and by the faint rays of the moon which streamed in through the crevices of the upper logs, I saw a pole stretched across upon which the former occupants of the cabin had hung such things as they desired to have out of their way.

I desired to be out of the way now, and springing with all my strength, I caught upon the pole and drew myself up into the roof of the cabin; but hardly had I done so, when the door was dashed wide open, letting in a flood of moonlight and a huge bear at the same moment!

The bear saw me in an instant, and rearing upon its haunches, regarded me with much solemnity for a few moments, while I was engaged in drawing up my legs as far as possible out of its reach, in case Bruin meditated an attack upon them. For the space of about two minutes the brute sat there motionless, with its little eyes glowing like coals of fire; and then it gave a mighty spring towards the roost upon which I was perched, but missed its aim, and dashed itself against the opposite side of the cabin. A cry of horror burst from my lips, and echoed wildly in the forest without. My heart stood still with fear, for I doubted not that the next time the brute leaped it would be successful, and I should be completely at its mercy.

It turned again with a fierce growl of disappointment, and prepared for another spring. I crowded myself up into the low roof as far as possible, and waited for its coming. With a mighty spring the brute came on, and this time it was more successful than before. It caught one of its huge paws upon the pole upon which I rested, and in a moment it snapped in twain, letting both of us down together. I gave myself up for lost, as well I might without the slightest weapon of defence against the monster. Already I seemed to feel its teeth and claws in my flesh, and I closed my eyes as I thought forever on the scenes of this world. The huge monster stood over me, and I could feel its hot breath upon my face. One paw was laid upon my breast, and each moment I expected to feel its teeth in my throat.

Suddenly there was a tramp of hurried feet outside, and the sound of human voices. With a wild hope that I might yet be saved, I shouted for help at the top of my voice. An answer came back close at hand. The brute heard it, and sprang over me out through the doorway. The next moment there was the report of a rifle followed by a howl of pain, and then the form of a man sprang into the cabin.

"Who is here?" he cried, as he felt about in the darkness.

I staggered to my feet, not yet recovered from the effect of my sudden descent from the loft, and answered him. Then we went into the moonlight, and saw the bear lying there, struggling in the agonies of death, with another man standing over him.

They proved to be fishermen spending the night in the forest; and as daylight broke, they readily conducted me through the woods to the hotel, under whose hospitable shelter I was glad to find myself at last.

ARRAIGNED FOR FORGERY.

There lived in the city of P——, in the State of Pennsylvania, a gentleman on the shady side of sixty, who had by industry and economy, amassed a large competence, sustaining in all the work of life a character above suspicion. He was the head of a fine family, and noted for his eccentricities and his peculiar style of dress. He was stoop shouldered, limped a little, and for about ten years previous to the scene about to be narrated, wore a coat that had turned red with age.

It was the middle of the afternoon of a cloudy, dismal day in March, when an old man entered one of the banks in the city named, and presented a check for payment. The cashier took it and paid over to the man $30,000, and he descended the steps to the street.

In less than five minutes after he had left, the check was discovered to be a forgery. The proper authorities were immediately notified by the cashier, who gave them a description of the person, and rigid search was immediately commenced. In about half an hour afterward, an officer entered the bank with a man answering the description, and presenting him to the cashier, asked him if that was the man.

"That is the man; I cannot be mistaken," he replied. He eyed him a little closer, being near sighted and throwing up his hand, he exclaimed.

"Mr. Rawling (the gentleman alluded to in the opening of the narrative,) can it be possible that you have committed this forgery?"

The old man protested his innocence, but of no avail; for he was led away to prison to await the sitting of the court.

His friends wished to go his bail, but he obstinately refused to accept release, and he lay in jail three months.

The day of trial came on, and, although defended by the best legal talent, the evidence against him was conclusive, and he was convicted.

It was sentence day. The court room was filled with spectators, and the friends and relatives of the prisoner. It was a sorrowful scene, and among the participants was the wife and two lovely daughters of Mr. Rawlins, their beautiful faces swollen with weeping over the sad fate of their father. One by one the prisoners descended from the box and received their sentences.

Rawlins was next in turn. There is an awful silence for some moments when the Judge, in a choking, trembling voice, for he was an intimate friend of the condemned man, said:

"Mr. Rawlins!"

He arose and took a stand before the Judge.

The Judge proceeded:

"Have you or any one in the room a reason why the sentence of the law should not be passed against you?"

Here a terrible silence ensued, almost paralyzing the hearts of many anxious friends; when, all at once a prisoner in the box—a young man—arose and said, "I have."

"Your reason," said the Judge.

"Because he is not guilty. I will explain."

What a mountain's weight of sorrow was lifted from the hearts of some by the pronunciation of these words not guilty

"Proceed! Proceed!" cried a hundred voices.

"I will. If you will send some reliable man—an officer or two—with me to a certain point on the main highway leading out of the city, under a flat stone of peculiar shape, you will find $10,000 of the money; the balance I have lost at faro."

They started, followed by a crowd.—In an hour—an hour of anxiety and excitement—they returned, and produced the money in court.

"Now," said the prisoner, "send to room No. 15, at the Linden House, on A—— street, and you will find a hair trunk, which you will bring to me."

In due time the trunk was brought into court, and at the previous secret request of the Judge, through the Sheriff, he and the trunk were placed in one anteroom and Mr. Rawlins in another.

In a few minutes he or Rawlins, no one knew which it was, took his place in the box, and the Judge ordered the Sheriff to summon the Cashier, which he did.

He now came in.

"Are you the Cashier of the bank to which that check was forged for $30,000."

"I am, sir."

"Before passing sentence upon this man I would have you look at him and tell the court if he is the man," said the Judge.

"He is the man. I cannot be mistaken, although I am sorry to say it."

Here the prisoner suddenly twitched the whiskers from his face, threw off his hat and coat, and stood in his shirt sleeves a mere boy. The Cashier swooned, fell on the floor, and was carried out of the court room.

"I am the man," said the prisoner, "who did the forging of that check. I came from England a few months ago, determined to make a raise. I knew the man would be looked at and not the check. How well I did it you all know; but I could not see an innocent man suffering for a crime that I had committed."

Rawlins was discharged and borne off triumphantly on the shoulders of his friends, and in consideration of the honesty of heart of the young man, the Governor commuted his sentence from twenty to two years—he having been convicted on another charge.

A NICE little boy in Pittsburgh went to the circus the other day, and amused himself by throwing stones at the elephant while he was drinking. When he got through the boy tried to propitiate him by offering him a piece of gingerbread.—Before accepting the cake the elephant emptied over the boy about sixty-four gallons of water, beer measure, and then slung him into the third tier to dry off.—This boy is very indifferent about circuses now. He says he believes he doesn't care for them as much as he used to.

A TRADER who has been annoyed by the congregation of loafers in front of his store in the evening, has adopted an effectual remedy for the nuisance. He sprinkles red pepper on the walk near the windows, and when the "audience" assembles and begins to "shuffle around," the fine dust of the pepper arises, and the crowd soon sneeze themselves around the corner.

HOW TO WRITE RIGHT is thus exemplified: Write we know is right, when we see it written write; but when we see it written wright, we know 'tis not then written right; for write, to have it written right, must not be written right nor wright, nor yet should it be written rite, but write—for so 'tis written right.

VALUABLE MAN.—The editor of the Tioga Agitator says: "Mr. C. L. Bennet laid a large hen's egg on our table measuring in circumference eight inches one way, and six the other." Gay chicken, that Bennet. What a handy man he would be to have about a house!

EBENSBURG, PA.

THURSDAY MORNING, : : JUNE 9, 1870.

THE State Teachers' Association of Pennsylvania will meet in the Court House in Lancaster, on the ninth day of August next, and continue in session for three days. A large attendance of teachers and friends of education is requested. Arrangements will be made with hotels and railroads for a reduction of rates of boarding and travel.

THE last number of the Johnstown Democrat, as well as the Tribune of the same place, contains an address especially directed to the editors of the aforesaid journals. It consists of an argument well known as a "heavy headed monster" in favor of the silly and defeated proposition to remove the county seat from Ebensburg to Johnstown. We will reply fully in our next paper to the palpable lies and wholesale misrepresentations in this production.

THE Democracy of Bedford county, at their recent convention, did themselves the honor of expressing their preferences for B. F. MEYERS, Esq., senior editor of the Harrisburg Patriot and Bedford Gazette, for the Congressional nomination in that district.—If the counties of Adams and Fulton acquiesce in this recommendation, and we feel sure they can do no better, we have no fear but that the district now disgraced and misrepresented by that miserable scalawag, John Cessna, will be redeemed from radical misrule, and be made to look with honest pride and pleasure upon an honorable and high-minded representative in the lower house of Congress in the person of B. F. MEYERS, Esq., who is a true gentleman, an unflinching democrat and an intelligent trustworthy man. So mote it be.

John W. Forney.

This gentleman, whose political character is so well known in this State, was recently nominated by a leading Republican paper as the next Radical candidate for Governor. Mr. Forney, for good and weighty reasons well understood by himself and by all who have any knowledge of his standing with his party, has wisely taken time by the forelock, and, in a letter addressed to the editor of the Germantown Democrat, has declined to permit his name to be used before the Convention. We have nothing to say specially on the subject, but will simply publish the following article from the Pittsburgh Commercial, a Radical organ, which shows that John W. Forney did a wise thing when he wrote his letter of declination:

A Harrisburg letter writer to the Beaver Radical expresses the conviction that the name of John W. Forney will be urged for Governor before the next Republican convention of the State. He omits to add that it will be urged in vain. The writer proceeds to give a history of Forney's political career, just as if the people of the State are not familiar and disgusted with it. Attempts like this to bolster up political hacks only lead decent people to ask if the time will never come when the Republican leaders will cease to insult the masses in this way. Cameron for United States Senator, Forney for Governor! Who is the next patriot on the list?

The Last Outrage.

We have frequently called the attention of our readers to the gross infamy of the present Congress in allowing men who were never elected to positions in that body, or any where else, to take their seats. There ought to be some decent respect paid to the voice of the white people of the South. But it seems that this cannot be done. JOHN CESSNA, of the Bedford district, has made himself conspicuous and infamous in the defence of the most unparalleled outrages during the present session of Congress. As a full proof of the truth of what we say, the following proceedings in the House of Representatives on last Friday week will eminently serve the purpose:

Mr Cessna. I now call up the contested election case of A. S. Wallace vs W. D. Simpson, from the Fourth Congressional district of the State of South Carolina. I propose to take but little time, not more than five minutes, and I do not know of anybody else who wants any time.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That A. S. Wallace was duly elected a member of the Forty-First Congress from the Fourth district of South Carolina, and is entitled to the seat he claims in this House.

Mr Cessna. I desire to state that no understanding or arrangement has been made in this case with anybody, and I desire to make no arrangement except such as the House may determine to make; and, therefore, in order to test the sense of the House, I now ask the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Cessna moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The latter motion was agreed to.

Of course Mr. Cessna's programme finished the whole case, and Mr. Wallace was sworn in as a member of Congress from South Carolina. That any honest man, either in or out of Congress, ever believed or thought for a moment that A. S. Wallace was elected and Simpson was not, is perfectly incredible. But, as will be seen by the foregoing proceedings, the infamy was fully and completely accomplished. We have no patience with this kind of a fraud. It is shameful, and no decent man can or will defend it.

Mr. Brooks, a sound and able democrat from one of the New York city districts, spoke like a high-minded gentleman against this wholesale outrage, as will be seen by his remarks appended below:

Mr. Brooks, of New York. Mr. Speaker, I avail myself of the three minutes remaining, not to discuss this case, but to state the facts as presented before this House this morning. On the early assemblage of the House and almost immediately after the reading of the Journal, when a quorum of the House was not present, and without a moment's consideration on the part of the members, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, [Mr. Cessna,] chairman of the sub-committee of elections, availed himself [illegible] to smuggle a man into this House as a member—I use the language deliberately—and to place us in such a parliamentary position that it is impossible, under the decision of the speaker, to have any discussion of the case, or to retrace our steps.

That is the fact, and I wish that fact to go before the country. No quorum, no order, in this House, but general disorder and confusion. Without any understanding or discussion whatsoever on the subject, a member is forced before this House, to be sworn in by the Speaker, who has only 9,807 votes against a Democratic candidate who has 14,098 votes. Don't talk to me hereafter, as a member from New York, of fraudulent elections! Never, never in the worst wards of New York, amid the most depraved of its population, was a fraud perpetrated like this House now perpetrates at its bar in attempting to-day to smuggle in here a man having only 9,000 votes against a Democrat having 14,000 votes. Let my colleague from New York (Mr. Davis), who is now in my eye, before he attempts to correct frauds in New York elections, let him correct the fraudulent elections here in this House, from Kentucky, from Louisiana, from South Carolina and elsewhere. There is not a fraudulent poll in New York, there is not a repeater there: there is not a scoundrel who defies the law or the Constitution of the country; there is nothing there, in the way it is now attempted to defraud us, who are in the minority here, by forcing upon this House another member elected by nobody, nowhere, having no constituency, representing nothing whatsoever.

Sir, I denounce these frauds from the Committee of Elections before the country with all the vigor I am capable of. This is no longer a representative government. This House no longer represents the people of this country. It is a packed Congress. It is a fraudulent House. It is elected by device and cheatery and contrivances such as have been exhibited this very morning at the bar of this House, here upon this floor—a man with 9,000 votes against a Democrat with 14,000 votes smuggled in here without a word of discussion.

RENOUNCING THE RADICAL PARTY.—Geo. W. Lowry, Esq., through the Ohio Northwest, makes the following renunciation of the Republican party, and declares himself manfully as "henceforth a Democrat."

Having been a charter member of the Republican party, I consider it due to the public to present a few prominent reasons for leaving it. I have carefully and dispassionately read all sides of the political issues now before the country, and am driven to the following conclusions as to the purposes of the party now in power.

1. To destroy the sovereignty of the States, and to centralize the power of the Government. This, of course, means Monarchy.

2. To force upon us political and social equality with the negro race. Take the present situation for an example. If it does not mean this, then I do not understand actions which speak louder than words.

3. Sustaining a swarm of useless Government loafers called officers, who live of course on the sweat and toil of the laboring producer. For example, see the Tenth Ohio District.

4. Protection to monopolies under the name of Tariff, at the expense and without the consent of the public. Of course all know that the consumer of goods pays all tariffs. Who are consumers?

5. Unequal taxation, which is therefore unjust, and tends to establish a moneyed and landed aristocracy, such as exists in all monarchial governments.

Relying on the wisdom, intelligence and patriotism of the Anglo-Saxon race to redeem our country from its present disgraceful political thraldom, I prefer being identified with them in this noble enterprise, and am therefore henceforth a Democrat.

G. W. LOWRY.

NO GENERAL AMNESTY.—A Washington telegram announces that not half a dozen Republican Senators would vote for a General Amnesty bill, and that there is a similar unanimity in the House against it. It is also stated with positiveness that Grant will not recommend the passage of such a bill. It is so manifest that the whole action of Congress and of Grant's administration is controlled by the single purpose of continuing power in the hands of those who now possess it, that no one can wonder that an immense number of whites are to be kept from the polls, while the ballot-box is thrown open to every negro in the land. Grant and the Radical Congressmen are convinced that a fair election would put an end to their misrule, and they do not intend to retire until they have stolen the last acre of the public lands, and made away with all the plunder of every description that they can lay their hands upon. When there is nothing left to steal we may perchance have restrictions removed, and be allowed to see free and fair elections again throughout the country. Meantime let ex-rebels submit to negro rule, and Northern taxpayers submit to being mercilessly fleeced without murmuring.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

THE TARIFF.—Mr. Morrell, Congressman from the Cambria District, in this State, has purchased one-third interest in the Bessemer steel rail, for railroads, and is now using his position in Congress to get a high tariff put upon all imported rails.

Another Congressman who has an interest in the Salt Works at Syracuse, New York, is using his influence to get a high tariff on salt, while several others from the New England States interested in various business projects are seeking for a high tariff to protect them. What is all their system but robbery of the laboring and farming interests of the country. Is Congress to be hereafter but "a legislative shop," where rascals play their game of plundering the people? The tariff business has got to be simply a means to enrich themselves at the expense of the balance of the community. The slaveholders numbered about three hundred thousand, and they sought to rule the country. They got their quietus. The manufacturers number about the same. They seek to rule the country, and they will get their quietus too in a short time. This government was made for the whole people and not for a few.—Butler Herald.

WHAT ARE THEY AFTER?—The Buffalo Courier submits this question, in regard to the action of the radical majority of Congress and the entire policy being pursued by the administration. What are they after?—After the people's money; after the public lands; after a perpetuation of power, through the influence of overshadowing monopolies, created without constitutional authority; after the liberties of the people, which they desire to grasp and hold within their vicious and unworthy hands; after their own individual aggrandizement at the expense of the hard earnings of the people. They are after everything honest or dishonest, that will give them place, power and plunder, no matter what it is, or in what shape it presents itself. They are after a governmental policy that will recognize them as the ruling and the people as the ruled class.

—One of the Yacton Sioux chiefs calls himself "Bill Goosequill." The Detroit Tribune says: "This is evidently a rude attempt by the poor untotored red man to pay a tribute to the name of William Penn."

—It is said that within a circuit of one hundred and twenty-five miles around the White Sulphur Springs of West Virginia there is more iron ore than in the whole of Great Britain.

GOOD-BY, OLD VETERANS!—Our patriot-loving Government has effected one saving at last.

You remember the war—and the veterans of 1812. A few old soldiers fast dropping into their graves. Our country dearly loves these old soldiers, and is very kind to them.

A few of them live South. Poor old men tottering graveward in abject poverty.—They lived in the South when they went into the war of 1812—when it was over they returned home.

Then came another war. While younger men fought, these old men stayed at home, and would not limp and stumble North to help preserve the Union.

Now the war for Southern independence and Northern power is ended, and rebels must be punished. So we reward such patriotic maggots as Longstreet and others who are willing to bore through a sacred corpse to grow fat thereon in office; and let the world know there is a "God in Izrael," cut off the pensions heretofore paid the old veterans to this extent that "no soldier of the war of 1812 residing in any of the States lately in rebellion shall henceforth be considered a pensioner on the bounty of the United States, and all further payment of pension money shall cease.

"This act shall take effect immediately."

And with the customary party majority this bill becomes a law. We congratulate taxpayers on this evidence of economy.—Loyalty demands that we shall make examples of rebels, and if we are afraid of the young men of the South, thank God we can make examples of a handful of old veterans, who might have died long ago, as they are of no further use to the Government, and live among Rebels.

Are we not, as a people, indeed blessed? The veterans of the late war are now receiving bounties. They pay it to themselves after paying for the support of bondholders. The rich holder of United States bonds pays not a penny in the abstract. The veteran who now works pays for the support of the aristocrat he created—then pays to himself a bounty, and this is loyalty.

Ours is such a protecting government! Such a patriot-loving government! Long may it wave!—N. Y. Democrat.

RELIGIOUS WAR IN TURKEY.—A cable dispatch under date of Constantinople, June 1st, says: A fearful war of religious intolerance has broken out in the province of Roumelia, a metropolitan province of the Turkish Empire, in the South of Europe. For some time the native Christians have manifested a spirit of fearful vindictiveness against the Jewish population, who have endeavored in vain to obtain from the government some protection against outrage and extortion. A secret movement has been in organization for some time for the extermination of the inoffensive Jews.

The deep and deadly hatred of the bigoted populace had only been slumbering, and waiting vent for its fury. On Sunday last, by a preconcerted signal, the Christian populace rose, and a fearful work of butchery was inaugurated. At an early hour all the houses of the Jews were invaded, and the occupants who were unable to escape, were massacred in cold blood. The fleeing Israelites were pursued through town by an armed mob and murdered, wherever caught, men, women and children. The fury of the populace was inflamed with religious bigotry, and only exhausted itself for want of victims. In all of the principal towns the fearful work of butchery prevailed, and thousands of men, women and children of the repugnant class were butchered. The work of slaughter still goes on in the interior, and nothing has been heard yet of any movement by the authorities to suppress it. The reigning Prince is absent from the provinces and advantage was taken of this to complete the extermination of all the Jews from the province. Prince Charles is hurrying home, and energetic measures will at once be taken by the Sultan to suppress this religious emeute. Meanwhile the fury of the mob continues unabated in finding fresh victims to glut its insatiate frenzy.

THE Fenian General Gleason is described as still a young man, being not yet thirty-five years old, six feet six inches in height, and his fighting weight is two hundred and twenty pounds, with physical strength in proportion to his size, and the most unquestionable courage. He was born in Ireland, and at an early age took part in an abortive rising in that country. After this he made his way to Rome, and entered the army of the Pope, where he remained until about the time the Rebellion broke out in the United States. He arrived here in 1862, at once enlisted, and rose to be a Lieutenant Colonel in the Sixty-third New York Infantry, a gallant Irish regiment. Being mustered out at the close of the war, in 1865, he went back to Italy again, and once more put on the uniform of the Papal army. He distinguished himself in fighting the brigands, who about that time infested parts of the Papal territory, and was decorated for the gallantry he exhibiten in these encounters. In 1867 we find him in the United States again, serving as an Inspector in the Internal Revenue Department.

A NEW style of cheap one story houses has been patented in London, and now they are being introduced into Berlin by the Prussian government. These houses consist of a light frame-work, connected by cross-bars and filled in between with three layers of straw which are sewed together. The straw before being put in is soaked in water-glass to make it fire proof, and the layers are well pressed together, after which they are covered with a coat of asphaltum on the outside, and mortar or plaster on the inside. In the middle layer the straws lie horizontally, in the two others vertically, an arrangement which gives the walls solidity. The roof is supported by iron beams, covered by corrugated iron and asphaltum, and may be used as a garden or yard. Such a house is put together in from two to three days, is thoroughly fire proof, and warm in winter and cold in summer. A dwelling house with two rooms, kitchen and its appendages, costs in London about three hundred dollars; with four rooms and the other necessary compliments less than five hundred dollars.

—The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph intimates that the Democratic majority in Pennsylvania next fall may be fifty thousand, on account of the appointment of Wayne M'Veigh and the political intrigues of Senator Cameron. The majority will, doubtless, be very large but we do not think that it will altogether come up to that figure. But the idea of attributing the anticipated defeat of the radicals to the dissatisfaction of the people at the appointment of Mr. M'Veigh, as minister to Turkey, is very absurd. The causes of complaint lie much deeper than that.

—A "Lion Queen," at the Bowery Theater, New York, while performing with a couple of puma lions, on Saturday night week, was attacked by one of them and terribly bitten on the throat, shoulder and arm. She was rescued from the cage by the stage attendants, who beat the enraged lioness off with iron bars. Many of the audience fainted during the excitement.

—A new patent is out for making steel rails direct from the pig. The iron is melted in a cupola, run into a reverbatory furnace, (where it is carbonized,) run into ingots, allowed to set, reheated, run through the rollers, and made into rails, which it is said can be sold profitably at fifteen dollars per ton. —An old man presented himself before an overseer of the poor in Minnesota the other day, with six horses and other stock, valued at $1,500, which he desired the county to receive and in return support him the rest of his life. Blacking were mortally injured. Ten other man were badly injured.

—There is trouble among the negroes at the National Capital. They are already divided into two classes, one comprising a few rich and exclusive individuals and the other embracing "the common run of niggers."—A Washington journal, appealing to the negroes to vote for its favorite candidate for Mayor speaks of "such aristocrats of the run as George Downing, who wouldn't have his daughter married in a colored church, and Sella Martin, who seems to have a pretty fat thing of it in the way of contract jobbing."

—The procession of the Catholic Central Union at Louisville, Ky., on Sunday last, was one of the finest ever witnessed in that city. Numerous large arches were erected in different parts of the city, and many houses were decorated with evergreens and displayed flags and banners inscribed with mottoes of welcome, etc. The marshal of the procession attracted attention by his emmense beard. It was over ten feet long.

—Senator Morrill, of Vermont, has put on record a very high compliment to Gen. F. P. Blair, jr., the late Democratic candidate for Vice President, which seems now to be unearthed for the first time. In a speech in the Senate, he asserted that but for the unswerving valor, patriotism and gallant conduct of that gentleman, Missouri in the early period of the rebellion, would have been arrayed with the Southern Confederacy in the attempt to dismember the Union.—What a severe rebuke from high Republican authority to the revolutionists of Missouri, who deny to this most gallant officer of the army the elective franchise upon a frivolous technicality, whilst conferring it by wholesale upon illiterate negroes.

Local Prunings and Pencilings.

..A lad named Mitchell was kicked in the face by a mule, at Indiana, not long since, and badly injured.

..Jack Frost has not yet "interviewed" the fruit and vegetables in this vicinity, and it is to be hoped that he will not.

..Geo. Davis, who shot and wounded Maggie M'Gillan, in Hollidaysburg, not long since, has been sent to an insane asylum.

..The attendance at Court is not large, neither is the criminal calendar, and this week's session will probably come to a close to-day.

..James Bell, Esq., an old, prominent and wealthy citizen of Hollidaysburg, died a few days ago. He was a lawyer by profession.

..Loretto Springs, under the management of the proprietor, Mr. F. A. Gibbons, will be opened as a summer resort on the first of July.

..One horse, one hog and fourteen head of sheep have been killed by lightning in Westmoreland county within the past three weeks.

..James Morgonroth and his son Adam were both killed by lightning in Centre county on Thursday week, while at work repairing a barn.

..An umbrella in the hands of a school girl at Somerset was struck by lightning the other day. The girl still goes to school, nevertheless. Brave girl!

..David Lingafelt has been nominated and will doubtless be confirmed as postmaster at Hollidaysburg, in place of James Bingham, resigned.

..The Pittsburgh Commercial is responsible for the assertion that a new paper mill is to be erected at Hollidaysburg. We hope the report is true.

..The coal miners on the western slope of the mountain, who were on a strike, have gone to work at old rates, but those east of the mountain still refuse to come to terms.

..A prospectus has been issued for a new Republican paper at Greensburg. It is said that it will, when established, attempt the herculean feat of making Harry White Governor of this State.

..School directors throughout the county who may be in want of the necessary blanks for making out their annual reports, should apply to or address T. J. Chapman, Co. Supt., at this place.

..One arm and two ribs broken in consequence of Michael Isenberg, of Frankstown township, Blair county, standing too close to a horse's hoof when it was in the act of "kicking up behind."

..We learn by way of Altoona that an Indiana county man recently caught a catfish which measured 4 feet and 10 inches in length and weighed 48 pounds. What a whopper!—of a catfish.

..Dr. D. W. Zeigler, dentist, will put in an appearance at the Mountain House, in this place, on Monday next, and remain all week. Let those who have "biz" with the doctor make a note of this.

..Ernest Rhey, formerly of this place, now of Leavenworth, Kansas, recently participated with a number of others in a grand buffalo hunt, and several of the "varmits" were made to bite the dust.

..A carpenter fell from the Court House dome at Indiana, a few days ago, but fortunately caught on a piece of timber, when he had fallen only about six feet, and saved himself from a fearful death.

..Our exchanges all unite in paying tribute to the grandeur and unsurpassable magnificence of Van Amburgh's mammoth menagerie, and there is no doubt that it will be well worth seeing. Where it has already exhibited they speak loudest in its praise.

..Nearly all, if not all, the Democratic aspirants for office have been in town this week.—They are all deserving and competent gentlemen, and in the selection of either we shall regret the defeat of the other candidates. But of course all cannot win.

..The removalites, it is rumored, intend to take the war path right away, and a nominating convention is to be called without delay, if it has not already been called. Who the "coming man" will be we cannot even conjecture, and hence we shall await further developments.

..According to the Internal Revenue laws, any executor or administrator neglecting or refusing to deposit with the assistant assessor a schedule of all the property in his possession, within thirty days of his appointment, renders himself liable to a fine of $500 and the costs of prosecution.

..Fun and feasting will not be the only peculiarities of the Fourth of July pic-nic at Loretto. The occasion will be marked by the usual patriotic recognition of that glorious anniversary, and one or two good speeches may be expected, as well as other proceedings befitting the great national holiday.

..Clark Wilson, Esq., formerly of this place, owns a tract of land near Lawrenceburg, Armstrong county, on which is located an oil well which is now pumping eight barrels per day, with a prospect of doing better. O. L. Moore, of the Altoona Sun office, is one of the owners of the well, which is called "Little Annie."

..A boy living with John Feathers, in Hempfield township, Westmoreland county, some 8 or 9 years of age, was struck by lightning and instantly killed on Tuesday of last week. He was passing a fire-place at the time, and the electric fluid came down the chimney. A hole in one of his feet was the only mark left by the lightning.

..The Philadelphia Express train, Conductor Story, made a narrow escape not long since from being thrown from a precipice near Pack Saddle mountain, a few miles west of Johnstown. A huge oak tree had been blown across the track, and was only discovered in time to check the train within less than ten yards of the obstruction.

..While several young men employed on the new jail were bathing in Williams' dam, on Saturday evening last, one of them, named John Hanna, who could not swim, got beyond his depth, and had it not been that a plank was shoved to him, he would undoubtedly have been drowned. As it was he sank twice before he was rescued.

..This (Thursday) being the last day of the pic-nic at Bradley's Station, we trust that it will be well attended and prove a great financial success. The cause needs money and deserves it, and no one can conceive of a more agreeable and pleasant method of contributing to a good purpose and enjoying themselves to their hearts' content.

..Andrew Allison, of Union township, Bedford county, sought to sever his connection with all sublunary things by severing his windpipe with a Barlow knife, on Friday week, but having had no previous experience in the business, he botched the job, and then attempted to accomplish his purpose by stabbing himself several times in the side; yet, notwithstanding all this, he failed to make himself a fit subject for a coroner's inquest. His recovery is probable.

..Black bass have been successfully introduced into the waters of Bedford county, and several of these fine fish, one of which weighed three pounds, have recently been caught there. Twenty-two catfish, the most of which weighed over two pounds, were secured a few days ago by the same gentleman who caught the three pound bass. The Gazette, which is responsible for this story, fails to tell us whether the black bass came in under the fifteenth amendment or not.

..We are authorized to state that the rumored withdrawal of W. Horace Rose, Esq., of Johnstown, as an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature, however it may have obtained currency, is without foundation in fact. Mr. Rose is still in the field, and designs to "fight it out on that line" until the coming Democratic County Convention shall render judgment for or against him. By the decision of the convention only he pledges himself to abide.

..Mrs. Hay, relict of Dr. Michael Hay, dec'd, died in Johnstown on Monday last at a very advanced age, after having suffered from partial paralysis for a number of years. Mrs. Hay was one of the oldest, if not the very oldest inhabitant of Johnstown, having been, if we are rightly informed, born and reared there. She has gone to her grave full of years, but has left a record of good deeds which her children and friends can cherish with consoling pride and satisfaction.

..We note with great pleasure that our young friend, John W. McKinney, has become associated with Mr. D. W. Moore in the publication of the Altoona Daily Sun. John is in every respect fully equal to the emergency, being a perfect master of the "art preservative," a ready and vigorous writer, and a good fellow generally.— The Sun deserves to prosper, not only because of the talent and enterprise exhibited in its columns, but because its proprietors are both sound democrats and worthy gentlemen.

..Mr. Lawrence Dee, who for the past nineteen years has been a resident of Susquehanna township, this county, turned his back, for the last time perhaps, upon his old home, and started for Cresco, Howard county, Iowa, on Tuesday evening last, whither his son-in-law and daughter, his only living relatives, had preceded him some weeks ago. Mr. Dee has been one of the best citizens of which our county could boast, and we only re-echo the sentiments of his many friends when we say that we wish him a long and peaceful life in his new home.

..A serious railroad collision, resulting in the killing of a brakeman on one of the trains, a young man from Philipsburg, Centre county, Hunter by name, and the fracture of one of the legs of another named Brown, said to be a resident of Hollidaysburg, occurred between eastward bound stock and freight trains near Wilmore, this county, about 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning of this week. We did not learn full particulars, but believe that very little damage was done to either train, the young man killed having been crushed between two piles of lumber, where he is supposed to have been sleeping.

..John C. Vickroy, Esq., of Cumberland Valley, Bedford county, was found dead in a field belonging to his son-in-law on Wednesday evening week. He had entered the field in the morning, but as his son-in-law supposed that he had afterwards returned to his own home, a short distance away, and as those at home believed him to be still at his son-in-law's, search for him was not instituted until evening, when his lifeless remains were discovered as stated. Mr. V. was subject to heart disease, which doubtless caused his death. He was in his 72d year, and was greatly esteemed.

..And now comes Wilmore with a Fourth of July pic-nic and celebration, and as it wields a somewhat elongated piece of timber, we doubt not that it will succeed in bringing down a considerable lot of persimmons. Plainly speaking, if any class of people anywhere know more about getting up a rural festival than our elever friends at Wilmore, we have failed to learn of their whereabouts, and don't advise anybody else to lose time in vain efforts to find them.— For true hospitality and genuine enjoyment on the coming Fourth, our Wilmore friends will be found the right kind of people to tie to.

Local Correspondence.

JOHNSTOWN, June 6, 1870.

Dear Freeman—Mr. John E. Fry, foreman of the foundry department at the Cambria Iron Works, had both of his eyes burned by a flash of hot metal thrown from a casting at which he was employed on Friday last. His injuries are of a painful but not serious character.

The Johnstown papers appeared last week in a plethoric condition, with a perfect diabetus of names, the signers being all supposed to be in favor of the removal of the county seat. * * Following this was a public meeting on the public square to give further publicity to the thousand declarations already in print. [The balance of this story, which we decline to publish, may appear, if not in the same words, at least in substance, in the next Johnstown Tribune.— We are opposed to the movement, not only from position but from principle, and we decline to have our columns used for the purpose of glorifying a cause which we deem unrighteous and unworthy of the support of the many good men who seem to approve and sanction it, even though our correspondent sees fit to offer a "Balm in Gilead" by condemning the intemperate course and selfish motives of the would-be leaders in the movement. We are not alarmed at the dangers which seem to threaten us, but prefer to let the Johnstown agitators take care of themselves, and hence we decline to have any justification of their course, or any intimation that it is right, sent broadcast to the world through our columns.—Ed. Freeman.]

Some of our citizens are talking of leaving this place and emigrating westward. A large party went out to Nebraska on the 16th of May and returned the 1st of June. They were greatly pleased with that State, and especially with a couple of counties called Nuckolls and Jefferson. Nuckolls is traversed by two splendid rivers and one railroad, is well watered and well timbered, and for richness of soil and healthfulness of climate it cannot be excelled. Some of our wealthiest men are now trying to sell their properties here preparatory to going west.

Carncross & Dixey's Minstrels were here two nights and played to small audiences at the Opera House. A couple of pugilists also held forth at Union Hall on Saturday night. We did not witness their sparring, but it was pronounced good (?) by those who received the blows.

The Democratic election on Saturday last went all to one side. The vote for the old system, so far as I have learned, was almost unanimous. In the 6th ward it was unanimous.

Workmen are now engaged in raising the dam at the water works on the Wildcat run, about twenty feet higher than it was formerly. This will enlarge the basin and give greater power to the hydrants. But, if we are correctly informed, it is only a mud wall, and some day we may look out for a crevasse which will come like a water-spout, deluging the world below.

Hon. Jacob M. Campbell, Surgeon General of the State, was home last Saturday on a visit, and he represents the land office as being in a busy though flourishing condition. People throughout the State are perfecting their titles to lands by paying up all arrears. Nearly thirty thousand dollars were taken in at the land office during the last month.

Van Amburg's Menagerie is to be here on the 17th inst. A large collection of animals will then be exhibited and it is called a grand moral exhibition. Perhaps it is.

Seventy-eight dollars were collected for the Decoration Day ceremonies, fifty-two of which were spent, and a surplus of twenty-six remain, which will be appropriated in some way or other. ROB ROY.

SUMMERHILL TWP., June 6, 1870.

Friend Mac—Within the past week death has removed from among us two aged citizens and long residents in the persons of Mr. Jas. O'Neill, of Summerhill township, and Mr. Lawrence Cassiday, of Wilmore borough, both of whom died on Friday last. May their immortal spirits find rest eternal.

The election in this township on Saturday, relating to the mode of making future nominations, did not excite much interest, scarcely one-fourth of the Democratic voters of the township having participated. This should not have been so. Every Democrat should have given expression to his sentiments in the proper way. It is very strange that a large portion of the people should manifest so much indifference about one of the most important duties of a citizen—that of determining the best means for securing the nomination of good men for office. On this the welfare of the party depends, and yet voters will remain away from delegate elections and the like, and afterwards become dissatisfied with the results plainly brought about by their own lukewarmness and folly, forgetting that the fault lies with themselves entirely and only.

The coming fall election should excite more than the usual interest, especially in the choice of a representative who will consult the rights and wishes of the people. No man should be entrusted with that important duty whose position and antecedents might leave him open to even the suspicion of being favorable to the plundering schemes of corporations rather than the interests of the people.

Our friend Mr. William Doran, as most of your readers are doubtless aware, is an aspirant for the office of Sheriff for the ensuing term, and among all the candidates named for that position, I do not think there is one more competent or more deserving the favorable consideration of the Democracy of Cambria. He has been an earnest worker in the cause of the party for a number of years, and has done more for the success of Democratic principles in this county than any other man in this section. He is also one of seven voters in the same family, all of whom have invariably used their votes and influence in behalf of the same cause, and who are abundantly able to give all the security required. Aside from this, the township of Summerhill has not had an office or candidate for ten or twelve years, and then only one of minor importance. The people here feel that their claims and the claims of their candidate are as good as as those of any other people or candidate, and his selection as one of our standard-bearers in the coming contest will do much towards securing an enthusiastic support of the ticket hereaways and dispelling the impression which prevails among many that no account of their services to the party is taken into consideration by the leading Democratic politicians of the county when it comes to selecting candidates.

Hoping that the nominations, when made, will prove entirely satisfactory to all, I remain the sincere friend of the welfare of the Democratic party. SOLTERO.

JOHNSTOWN, June 6, 1870.

Dear Freeman—The glowing promises of April have been reiterated by May, and the season progresses with almost tropical warmth and benignity. The mercury has not been as low as the freezing point since the sixth day of April—the temperature of the season advancing with each succeeding day—while genial showers have duly refreshed the growing crops. Although the season of growth was late commencing, vegetation has attained, at the time of writing, a growth scarcely paralleled by the famous season of 1859, prior to the frost. The grape vines have made a growth of from four to six feet, and the delicious odor of their opening flowers is beginning to float on the balmy air.

The average temperature for May was 64.5 degrees; lowest, on May 19th, of 90 degrees. Rain fall for the month, 4.5 inches. Total rain for the year so far, 20 inches.

Before closing, and without the desire to be considered a croaker, I would still suggest the possibility of a reverse of the season. My reason for thinking so is this: We know that northward of us snow and ice continually prevail, and that the cold air of these arctic regions is heavier than the warmer air of our more favored clime. A long continued season of warmth here may cause such an upward current as to create a comparative vacuum, affording room for the colder air north of us, which will flow as quickly as an unrestrained flood from the regions of snow and ice, and thus produce results as disastrous as the great frost of 1859. We hope, however, for a continuance of our present most genial season. W. L. A.

A Question Answered.

Dear Freeman—I noticed in your last number an inquiry into the reason for calling the closing exercises of academical institutions commencements. If I am not much mistaken, the exercises are so called because during them the students who have then completed their course of studies and received their degrees, commence to enjoy the rights and privileges of the degrees conferred upon them. A QUILL DRIVER.

A Fine Establishment.—The newly fitted up store room of Messrs. M. L. Oatman & Co. is really an honor to our town, and since the introduction into it of the mammoth stock of superb goods of every description, with which it is at present filled to overflowing, it has become the great centre of attraction for those who admire a perfect stock and fair, honest prices.— Oatman & Co. are taking the lead in the mercantile race, and are bound to win their way to a more extended and extensive patronage, and they have the right kind of goods, and plenty of them to see them through in the enterprise.

..At the battle of Spottsylvania Court House, in May, 1864, Mr. Geo. W. Brown had the misfortune to stand in the way of a minnie ball, fired from a rebel rifle, and the result was that the ball became imbedded in the fleshy part of the left leg, where it remained until one day last week, (affording Mr. B. at times no little pain and inconvenience,) when it was extracted by Dr. Evans, of this place, after having worked its way almost to the surface of the skin. Mr. B. designs to preserve the ball as a memento of his share in the "late unpleasantness."

Deserves a Premium.—Our accomplished photograph artist, Mr. T. R. Evans, has gone to Cleveland to attend the National Photograph convention, and has taken with him several specimens of his work, among them an excellent porcelain picture of our townsman, R. L. Johnston, Esq., which cannot fail to attract general admiration and should not fail to secure a premium. Mr. Evans' rooms here will be open during his absence and under the charge of a good artist.

..The Hollidaysburg Standard says it is rumored that J. M. Swank, Esq., recently of the Johnstown Tribune, is negotiating for the purchase of the Huntingdon Journal. Wonder if that paragraph shouldn't read John M. Bowman, Esq., and Huntingdon Globe? The latter journal needs reconstructing very badly, and we would not be surprised if a little Morrell suasion was brought to bear in that direction.

MacShane on the Rampage.

Dear Freeman—Well, while at New York we went to Booth's Theatre. Clarke, the comedian, was the attraction. He is a brother-in-law of J. Wilkes Booth, the assassinator of Lincoln, and because he was his brother-in-law, was in durance vile for a considerable length of time. But he was finally released, and came out funnier than ever. He was, at the time of our visit, the chief attraction on the New York boards. I beg your Susquehanna and Chest and White readers not to confound this term "board" with any "lumbering ideas of their own. I saw no real board in New York—they only exist in a figurative sense, as the Board of Trade, the Board of Health, &c., among which are the theatrical boards.

Well, we went to Booths! Clarke came out in two pieces—not divided—but in two different performances. He has a fine appreciation of the ludicrous. He acted "Toodles" so well up to nature as Toodles drunk, that I should have been very highly amused if I had not, by accident, on one occasion, at Ebensburg, seen a man really drunk.

The next night we went to the Fifth Avenue Theatre. "Frou-Frou," a tragic, sensational performance was the attraction. This piece is brought upon the stage mainly to exhibit the finest goods and latest fashions of upper tendom in New York. Still, as a tragic production, the play has merits. Near the close of the fifth act, where the heroine dies in the most heartrending manner possible, I felt a briny current coursing down my manly cheeks, and found the cheeks of my young lady friend similarly suffused— when, looking at the bottom of the bill, I found that "Frou-Frou" could not be so dead as she seemed to be, as she was to appear again in the same character the next evening. Whereupon myself and my fair friend "dried up."

Went afterwards to see the public and private institutions about the neighborhood of Wall street. Passed unharmed among the "bulls and bears" of that interesting locality, and found myself inside of an Insane Asylum.

A few days previously I had visited Kirkbride's Asylum at West Philadelphia and was desirous of contrasting these beneficient institutions of the rival cities. I found the advantage greatly in favor of the Philadelphia Asylum, in which the most perfect order reigns—a quietness and decorum that might be imitated to great advantage by our Radical Congress. In the New York Institution things were quite different. A degree of wild frenzy, to which no term so well applies as that of "crazy," seemed to possess all the unhappy inmates.— The man whom I supposed to be their keeper, was protected from their fury by an iron railing; and instead of the soft, persuasive tones of Dr. Kirkbride, he addressed the lunatics in an angry voice, and enforced their vociferations by the use of a wooden mallet, which he frequently brought down with great force on the table before him. We passed to another room, where the scene was still more fearful and heartrending. My own brain almost reeled, a feeling of faintness came over me—and I hurried from the building. * * * * My chaperone, amused at my alarm and excitement, gave me some valuable information. "My dear Mac," said he, "you have not been in a mad house, but in the Stock Exchange and Gold Room. And the bid of the veriest seeming maniac in that infuriated crowd, controls the gold or the stock market of the United States. From this building all the bankers and brokers in New York take their cue—from this building is the stock and gold market of the United States regulated."

It was even so. I merely ejaculated a short sentence from some part of Divine inspiration, to wit: "These be thy Gods, oh! Israel!" and behold I was again myself, MACSHANE.

The Old System.—The democrats of this county, at their special election on Saturday last, determined to stick to the old method of making nominations, having heard no doubt that George Huntley still keeps on in his old and popular system of doing business, and being desirous of following so commendable an example. We hope our political friends will be as well satisfied with the workings of this system as the many hundreds of people who buy their hardware, queensware, groceries, and other goods at Mr. Huntley's renowned and low priced heavy stocked house-furnishing establishment.

Two Removals.—While some of the Southern extremists are going in heavy on the removal of the county seat, the people hereaway content themselves with removing goods from the mammoth cheap cash store of H. A. Shoemaker & Co., after having of course bought and paid for them, which customers find to be no hard matter, considering that they sell everything so wonderfully cheap. We move that all seeking good bargains move at once on the Shoemaker store and help to remove the choice goods which they are selling at lowest prices.

The Difference.—It is given as a somewhat remarkable circumstance, that the later Old Sol, the sun of nature, retires to rest the earlier he is up and attending "to biz" on the following morning. Not so with the sons of men, whose proclivities are quite the reverse. Yet Old Sol has his counterpart, so far as rising is concerned, in the excellent bread which is invariably produced by the choice family flour always to be bought at lowest prices from E. J. Mills, the extensive flour and feed dealer down street, whose fame, like his flour, is bound to rise.

Not True.—The report that Van Amburg's big elephant intends to bring his trunk full of new goods for the renowned cheap store of A. G. Fry, on High street, lacks confirmation, and we have reason to believe that the story is untrue. Mr. Fry gets his goods in a more expeditious manner, and would think nothing of selling forty trunks full of goods before the elephant would have time to get his trunk unpacked. Come and see the elephant, if you will, but go and see Mr. Fry's big stock and buy a bill of goods before you do anything else.

Don't Believe It.—If anybody should tell you that the Johnstown agitators intend to buy out Ebensburg, "lock, stock and barrel," and remove new jail, court house and all to that favored spot at the foot of the hill, we wouldn't advise you to believe it any more than we would advise you to believe that a prettier stock of clocks, watches, jewelry, and fancy goods, or a larger assortment of cigars, smoking tobacco, stationery, etc. can be found anywhere than at the newly fitted up and greatly enlarged store of C. T. Roberts.

"Locke on the Understanding" was a great lock, but the lock that Benton & Wayne have just put up before their Hardware Store, No. 208, on Main street, Johnstown, is decidedly the greatest lock we ever saw. It hangs high and dry above their door, where they keep all kinds of hardware and farming utensils, such as hoes, axes scythes, cradles, sickles, shovels, rakes, forks, and pullies; also, glass of all sizes, with knives, forks, spoons, and all kinds of cutlery; children's carriages; iron and steel. Call and see the great lock.

Handsome Sights.—A rainbow, a flower garden, a bouquet, or a suit of clothes bo't from James J. Murphy, No. 109 Clinton street, Johnstown. One could not say positively which is the most beautiful, but the clothing is decidedly the most useful. Mr. Murphy has choice clothing. This is no brag, but a simple, self-evident fact—a self-evident truth that can be proved, demonstrated and ratified by going there and purchasing a suit of superb summer clothing of water proof, asbestos, and fire proof. This proof is proved.

N. F. Carroll, opposite the theatre, Main street, Johnstown, keeps all kinds of excellent dry goods and groceries. Mr. Carroll offers rare inducements to purchasers. He keeps new styles of goods. He keeps choice groceries.— He has neat fancy goods. He is ready and willing to show his goods. He takes greenbacks or gold in payment and does not grumble about it. He is a man among men. He deserves lots of customers, and gets lots of them; and he will continue to flourish as long as grass grows and water runs.

John J. Murphy has just opened up a choice lot of goods at Dibert's old corner, in Johnstown. He has all kinds of dry goods, dress goods, cloths and cassimers; goods for men's wear and material for ladies' dresses. Complete outfits. Calicoes, muslins, delaines, white goods, household goods, groceries, boots and shoes, table cloths, parasols, umbrellas, lace collars, hose, 'kerchiefs, counterpanes, shawls, gloves and many other things, and he invites the public from Dan to Beersheba to come and buy cheap goods.

A "Gnu" Thing.—A horned horse which is to be exhibited here next week will certainly be a "Gnu" thing and one of which no doubt many of our readers never before knew or heard a word; but the new and beautiful stock of dry goods, dress goods, clothing, notions, etc., all the time on exhibition at the great big store of V. S. Barker, and about which we are telling our reader every week, is a newer thing and a better thing than all the "Gnus" put together. Glorious news! Cheap bargains!

Mayer, 212. Mayer, 212 Opera House, Main street, Johnstown, is now thoroughly prepared to sell dry goods to all persons of all sizes and all tastes, all professions and all parties, for all money, or all cash. Bonnets and hats is a specialty with Mr. Mayer. He sells a great many and he has a great many to sell. Mr. Mayer does a rushing business at his New York Dry Goods Store, and Millinery Store. Thousands of dollars' worth of goods are sold weekly by Mayer, No. 212 Main street.

Promissory Note Lost.—A Promissory Note for $150, drawn by Martin Oak and A. Craver in favor of M. L. Boyce, payable on the 1st day of June, 1869, was lost somewhere in the vicinity of Ebensburg on May 31st, 1870. The finder will be liberally rewarded if he returns said note.— Inquire at this office. [ju.9.-3t.*]

Perfection.—A cotemporary calls Wanamaker & Brown's garments "The Perfection of Ready-Made Clothing." We hardly think perfection has been reached yet, but they are nearer it at Oak Hall, Philad'a, than anywhere else.

Ore Miners Wanted.—A number of good ore miners can find steady employment in the mines of the Brady's Bend Iron Co., Brady's Bend, Armstrong county, Pa. [m.26.-1m.]

Literary Notices.

"A VOYAGE TO EUROPE."—We have perused with pleasure if not with profit a neatly printed little work with the above caption, in which is detailed briefly but satisfactorily the experiences of the author, Mr. Wm. Bingham, Jr., the energetic and talented Pittsburgh shipping and advertising agent, who has twice gone over the ground and saw the sights so graphically described in this interesting little book. Of course we don't expect ever to visit Europe unless some one of the steamship lines which Mr. B. represents should undertake to transport us for nothing and pay our expenses while absent, but if we did we feel sure we would never go astray in our wanderings if we followed the directions so pleasantly given in this valuable little book.

BALLOU'S MONTHLY.—"Out of sight out of mind" has been exemplified in the case of the current number of Ballou, for although it is nearly a month since we received the issue for June, some literary thief spirited it away before we had time to examine it, and hence our delay in noticing it. Of course it was not a work of great merit no one would think worth while to steal it, but as it affords a great deal more entertaining and instructive reading matter for less money than any like publication in the country, we must admit that the temptation to steal it was pretty strong. Still as it is only $1.50 per year, we think everybody ought to subscribe for it. Elliott, Thomes & Talbot, Boston, are the publishers.

STEPHENS' HISTORY.—The National Publishing Company of Philadelphia has kindly furnished us with a few advance sheets of the second volume of Hon. A. H. Stephens' great and comprehensive work, "A Constitutional View of the War between the States," the issuing of which has been greatly delayed by the delicate health of the author. Any person who wishes to form a full and unbiased opinion of the motives which prompted the Southern people to rebel, should secure this great work, which can be done only by subscribing for it, and in order to afford all persons an opportunity to do so, the publishers are desirous of securing agents in every county.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—The June number of this exquisite magazine has been with us for two weeks or more, and should have received its monthly greeting ere this. Still it is never too late to recognize true merit, and although it is folly to multiply words of praise about Godey, we cannot refrain from giving the present number its full meed of praise by saying that it is fully equal in all respects to any one that has preceded it. One of the "women's rights" which ladies should insist on is the right to enjoy the monthly perusal of this really excellent and instructive magazine.

The Very Best.—Munson's Copper Tubular Lightning Rod, with Spiral Flanges, has been erected on thousands of buildings in all parts of the United States; and in a test of thirteen years, no instance of their inefficiency has occurred. It has received the first premiums at many State Fairs and Institutes, and was never beaten in any scientific contest. It has been endorsed by over five hundred Professors of Colleges and scientific men, as the best rod ever invented, possessing all the elements required to protect buildings from lightning. Its power surpasses twenty iron rods, or a solid copper rod an inch and a half thick. It does not get out of order, but will endure as long as the building stands on which it is erected. No holes are made in slate or tin roofs, and in every respect the utmost satisfaction is guaranteed.— The attention of Architects and Builders is respectfully called to the merits of this rod. Manufactured by LOCKHART & CO., 234 Penn street, Pittsburgh, and put up in Cambria county only by RICHARD JONES, Johnstown, Pa., who will promptly execute work entrusted to him in the most perfect and satisfactory manner. P. O. Box 50, Johnstown, Pa.

A Good Place.—An excellent view of the elephant, as he enters town in all the majesty and ponderosity of his nature, can be obtained by those who assemble on that day in the vicinity of Rowly Davis' cheap cash store in the East Ward, where the nicest stock of the finest goods at the fairest prices are offered for the inspection and purchase of all classes. If you want to see a show as is a show, elephant and all, go to R. R. Davis' East Ward store, and buy, buy, buy when YOU get there.

Leopold & Brother, Johnstown, will take the measure of any person who wants a neat fitting and fashionable suit of clothing, and send east and get it made and have it returned in three days. Samples of cloth always on hand. Also, all kinds of ready-made clothing, all sizes and patterns, for sale cheap as clothing can be made, and of good quality. Persons desiring neat suits, dress suits, Sunday suits, or wedding garments, should call with them at No. 241 Main street, Johnstown.

Summer Clothing.—This warm weather brings out the perspiration in a perfect stream, and the only cure is to go to Mayer's Clothing Store, No. 214 Main street, Johnstown, and purchase light summer clothing. Mr. Mayer has laid in a large stock of the ready made for men and boys, and all any man has to do is to go there and select a summer outfit, which can be procured for the cash as cheap as the market affords, and neatly tied up into the bargain.— Go to Mayer's.

The Head.—The head is the most important and valuable part of the human form divine, and the hat is also the most important and valuable portion of a dress. What young man would go around with a slouch hat? No one who has any taste. Then go to Cohen's Hat Parlor, No. 227 Main street, Johnstown, and buy a tip-top glossy beaver or silk hat, or a nice summer hat, and look like a man—a nice man —a gentleman—and all tongues will praise the act.

Cool and Refreshing.—We almost envy the people who live in and around Loretto since the warm weather has set in, for they have such a good opportunity of smacking their lips over a cool and refreshing drink of soda water since A. J. Christy has set up his splendid fountain in that place. Their chances for getting bargains, too, have been greatly enhanced since Mr. C. has opened out so extensively.

Cheapest—Simplest—Best!—Gearing all enclosed and warranted in McLanahan, Stone & Isett's (Hollidaysburg, Pa.) Mower, which they deliver free of freight for $110. They have also the best Independent Spring Tooth Hay Rake, Emory Mower Knife Grinders, Self-Raking Reaper, Gum Spring Drills, Combined Clover Hullers, Separators, Cider Mills, &c., &c. PETER CAMPBELL'S IMPROVED BEE HIVE.

The undersigned has secured letters patent of the United States, dated December 14, 1869, for an improvement in the construction of Bee Hives, and claims for his invention advantages possessed by no other heretofore patented.

The principal feature of this Bee Hive is the arrangement by means of which it is thoroughly ventilated, thus precluding the possibility of the bees smothering, the comb moulding or the honey souring. This desirable end is accomplished by a vertical perforated tube, running centrally through the hive and open at the top and bottom. All persons interested in apiculture will at once see the great advantages secured in this improvement. The ventilator is for the increase of bees.

The peculiar construction of the box, particularly in the arrangement of the inner compartments, whereby it can be cleaned at any time without disturbing the bees, is another valuable improvement which will be obvious to any person who examines this Hive. An examination of the workings of the bees or the condition of the interior can be made at any time, as the sides are cased with glass. Bees can be trasferred from a different hive to the improved one without any difficulty whatever. It would require too much space to enumerate here all the advantages claimed in this invention, but full information will be promptly furnished by applying in person or by letter to the patentee. I am now prepared to dispose of territory for the sale of the Improved Bee Hive in any portion of the United States.

HOW STRANGE IT WILL BE.

BY FLORENCE PERCY.

How strange it will be, love—how strange when we two
Shall be what all lovers become—
You rigid and faithless, I cold and untrue,
You thoughtless of me and I careless of you,
Our pet names grown rusty with nothing to do,
Love's bright web unraveled and rent and worn through,
And life's loom left empty—ah, hum!
Ah, me!
How strange it will be.

How strange it will be when the witchery goes
Which makes me seem lovely to-day,
When your thought of me loses its couleur de rose;
When every day serves some new fault to disclose;
When you find I've cold eyes and an every-day nose,
And wonder you could for a moment suppose
I was out of the common place way;
Ah, me!
How strange it will be!

How strange it will be, love, how strange when we meet
With just a chill touch of the hand;
When my pulses no longer delightfully beat
At the thought of your coming—at the sound of your feet;
When I watch not your coming far down the long street;
When your dear, loving voice, so thrillingly sweet,
Grows harsh in reproach or command;
Ah, me!
How strange it will be!

How strange it will be when we willingly stay
Divided the weary day through;
Or, getting remotely apart as we may,
Sit chilly and silent, with nothing to say,
Or coolly converse on the news of the day,
In a wearisome, old-married-folks sort of way!
I shrink from the picture—don't you?
Ah me!
How strange it will be!

Dear love, if our hearts do grow torpid and cold,
As many others have done;
If we do let our love perish with hunger and cold,
If we dim all life's diamonds and tarnish its gold,
If we choose to live wretched and die unconsoled,
'Twill be strangest of all things that ever were told
As happening under the sun!
Ah, me!
How strange it will be!

HANNIBAL'S SKELETON.—Thousands of persons throughout the United States, who have gazed in wonder upon the colossal proportions of Van Amburgh's famous elephant "Hannibal," on exhibition in this country about forty-six years, the largest specimen of the species ever imported into this country or Europe, will be interested in the final disposal of his bones, which, we understand, are to be added to the zoological curiosities of New York Central Park.

Hannibal died at Centerville, Md., in about the ninetieth year of his age, in May, 1866.—The complete skeleton of an elephant being very difficult to obtain, the bones are very valuable, and great precautions were consequently taken to preserve those of Hannibal, and under the charge of Albert Townsend, the carcass was dragged to a field about a mile from the village, and a large and strong mausoleum of masonry erected over it. There it was suffered to remain until the flesh had wasted away sufficiently to permit the removal of the bones. So great was the mass that not until a few days since was it thought advisable to open the tomb. The bones have been cleansed, transported to the Central Park and set up in the zoological department, there to remain an object of interest to visitors until the touch of time causes them to crumble into dust.

The above article was started by a New York paper some time ago and has been going the rounds of the press. It contains several serious errors which we feel it our duty to correct. In the first place Hannibal did not die at "Centerville, Md.," but at Centerville, in this county. His carcass was not "dragged to a field about a mile from the village, and a strong mausoleum of masonry erected over it," but a large ditch was dug close by where the monster expired and his body rolled into it. His tomb has not been opened, and his bones have not "been cleansed, transported to the Central Park, and set up in the zoological department there to remain an object of interest to visitors" who by thousands throng the most beautiful park in America. Hannibal's body still "lies mouldering in the grave" in our own Valley of Cumberland, and the sight-seer who goes to the zoological department of Central Park for the purpose of gazing on the outlines of the colossal proportions of the once famous elephant will be fooled, muchly.—We understood, however, that the Park Commissioners have been negotiating, for some time, with Mr. Whip, on whose farm the bones of Hannibal are resting, to have the carcass shipped to New York, but up to this time the parties have been unable to come to terms. When that important event comes to pass our readers shall know it. In the mean time if any curious individual wishes to visit the grave of Hannibal, he will find it near Centerville.—Bedford Gazette.

LEARN A TRADE—DON'T BE IDLE.—"A man that is too well born for a trade, is very well born for the gallows." There is a deal too much disrespect for honest labor for the healthful maintenance of either morals or government. There obtains a notion among a great class of people that when a person is relieved, by the possession of property, from the necessity of arduous toil, it becomes a degradation for him to labor at all. If the habit of work is so fixed that the moneyed man cannot remain idle, he apologizes for it as a sort of vice and refers to "habit" much as he would to addiction to opium or rum, as something to be ashamed of, but which, unfortunately, had got the better of him. His children are carefully educated to "slink the shop" and turn up their noses at those who work for a living. In seeking matrimonial alliances for them he looks for wealth rather than industry, and chooses as a husband for his daughter the man who has his inheritance in the bank, no matter how unfitted he may be to cope with misfortune, rather than the man who has a fortune in his brain, and will win his own way. Idleness and extravagance are curses worse than plagues of Egypt to us; they breed sorrow, wretchedness, crime and infamy; and send our sons into drunkard's graves and felon's cells, and put our daughters on the streets, into mad houses and garrets of poverty. Every boy, rich or poor, should be taught that idleness is crime—and girls should be taught it no less than boys. Every child should be taught some trade, and our school system should be so reformed and improved that young children should acquire the rudiments of technical education.—N. Y. Sun.

CURE FOR WOUNDS.—The Melbourne Argus speaks of a gentleman who received a kick from a horse below the knee of the right leg. The wound was partially healed, but it broke out again, and spread until the whole of the lower part of the leg was affected. Having heard of the success of the earth treatment in other cases, he procured some virgin soil taken from below the roots of the grass and applied it to the wound, which at that time was as large as his hand, and caused the leg to be much swollen. The result was that the swelling was reduced in the girth measurement three inches on the first application. The treatment was continued for three weeks, at the end of which time the wound was quite healed.

TO CLEAN GOLD CHAINS.—Put the chain in a small glass bottle, with warm water, a little tooth powder and some soap. Cork the bottle and shake it for a minute violently. The friction against the glass polishes the gold and the soap and chalk extract every particle of grease and dirt from the interstices of a chain of the most intricate pattern; rinse it in clear cold water, wipe with a towel, and the polish will surprise you.

ROSADALIS

THE GREAT AMERICAN HEALTH RESTORER purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:

I take pleasure in recommending your ROSADALIS as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of Scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. M'Fadden, Murfreesboro', Tenn., says: I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benj. Bechtol, of Lima, O., writes: I have suffered for 20 years with an inveterate eruption over my whole body. A short time since I bought a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by LEMMON & MURRAY, Ebensburg, and Druggists generally. Laboratory, 61 Exchange Place, Baltimore. CLEMENTS & CO.,
